INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

MR. P. R. PARKER, formerly engineer with the San Francisco office of the Bucyrus Co., is now in charge of the Seattle office of the Yuba Construction Co., Alaska Bldg., Seattle, Wash.

PUBLICLY ADVERTISING contracts for private work is not, in itself, a novelty, but the Rawley Mining Co. recently took that course to secure bids for a 6,000-ft. tunnel, which is rather unusual and indicates a feeling of confidence in both the engineers and the contractors.

THE AMERICAN SEWER PIPE CO., of Akron, Ohio, sent out, on Jan. 28, two unusually large shipments of sewer pipe. The pipe was carried by two special trains of 40 cars each, one to the extreme Northwest and the other to the Southwest. Mr. D. S. Hoover is the Eastern Sales Manager of the company.

MR. JAMES A. GREEN, of Chicago, has opened a branch office at 509 Overland Bldg., Boise, Idaho, for the purpose of carrying on general irrigation and hydraulic engineering and construction. The Boise office is in charge of Mr. W. F. Day, Assoc. Am. Soc. C. E., who has had extensive experience in irrigation work.

MR. C. W. WHITNEY has resigned his position as contract manager of the Ransome Concrete Co., San Francisco, Cal., to take the position as General Purchasing Agent of what are known as the "Hammon Properties," consisting principally of The Yuba Construction Co., Natomas Consolidated of California, Boston Machine Shop Co., and Hammon Engineering Co., who have their main offices in the Alaska Commercial Bldg., San Francisco.

THE NATIONAL BUILDERS' SUPPLY ASSOCIATION will hold its annual meeting at the Annex Hotel, Chicago, on Feb. 21 and 22. The subjects to be considered relate to business and commercial affairs, rather than to technical matters; but there will be a semitechnical discussion on "Building Brick as a Factor in National Conservation." The President is Mr. Charles Warner, Wilmington, Del.; Secretary, Mr. James W. Wardrop, 605 Commercial Bldg., Pittsburg, Pa.

THE WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC & MANUFACTURING CO. has sold to the Isthmian Canal Commission two 75-KW. motor-generator sets, with a switchboard for the control of each. One of these motor-generator sets will be located in the substation near the site of the Gatun Locks, and the other on the Pacific side, near the Pedro Miguel Locks. The apparatus will be used in connection with the construction of the lock gates. The outfits will be installed at Gatun and Pedro Miguel, and will operate on 25-cycle, 2,300-volt energy, transmitted from the power stations at Gatun and Miraflores. The motor generators will convert this alternating current to direct current at 230 volts, for use on the various small tools used in the gate construction.

MR. R. W. GARDNER, manager of the Howard Iron Works, Buffalo, N. Y., since 1905, has been elected vice-president of the Otis Elevator Co., and has taken up his residence in Chicago. The new officers of the Howard Iron Works are: Alvan H. Alberger, Pres.; Edward B. Holmes, Vice-Pres.; George H. Gardner, Secy. and Treas.

The Alberger Gas Engine Company, recently incorporated with a capital stock of $221,000, has acquired substantially all the capital stock of the Howard Iron Works, and has also acquired the gas-engine business which has been successfully conducted in this city by the A. H. Alberger Co. The Alberger gas engines are manufactured in sizes from 15 to 500 HP., and are well known throughout the country and abroad. They will, as heretofore, be manufactured at the plant of the Howard Iron Works, and it is planned by the new corporation to increase largely the manufacture and sale of the engines. The officers of the Alberger Gas Engine Co. are: Alvan H. Alberger, Pres.; Edward B. Holmes, Vice-Pres.; Harvey L. Brown, Secy. and Treas.

THE YUBA CONSTRUCTION CO., Marysville, Cal., the largest gold dredge designers and builders in the West, has recently entered into an agreement with the Bucyrus Co., South Milwaukee, Wis., by which the former takes over the exclusive agency for Bucyrus gold dredge machinery for the territory of Alaska and British Columbia. This arrangement enables the Yuba Construction Co. to give special attention to the Alaskan dredging business, and, as a further facility for handling that business, it has opened an office in Seattle, in the Alaska Building, which will be maintained permanently, in addition to the San Francisco office. The Yuba Construction Co. has also recently acquired the business and equipment of the Western Engineering & Construction Co., San Francisco, Cal. The latter is one of the oldest firms engaged in gold dredge construction. The company is now building three 15-cu. ft. dredges in California, a 13½-cu.-ft. and a 9-cu.-ft. dredge in Idaho, and is installing a complete hydro-electric plant and a 8½-cu.-ft. dredge with steel hull in Colombia, South America.

MESSRS. CAMMELL LAIRD & CO., Ltd., one of the three greatest steelworkers and shipbuilders in Great Britain, who have just been awarded a contract of $10,000,000 by the British government for the construction of one of the new Dreadnaughts—they are also building five other warships—have formed an American company to handle their products in this country. This new American corporation is known as Cammell Laird & Co., of New York, and its main office and warehouse will be in the 4-story building just completed at No. 34 Cliff St., New York. The company will occupy the entire building, and will carry a larger stock than ever of English tool and high-speed steel. It will be one of the most modern and best equipped steel warehouses in the United States.

Cammell Laird & Co. were among the first experimenters in and developers of high-speed tool steel, and special attention to this class of the business will be given by their American company. Among their other great specialties are nickel and chrome nickel steel for automobile parts, heavy forgings for ships, rolling mills, sugar mills, etc.

One of the managers of Cammell Laird & Co., of New York, is Lionel Samuel, who has been the General Agent of the Sheffield concern and established its offices here some years ago. Under his energetic direction the business has so outgrown its old quarters at No. 25 Cliff St. that the organization of a new company and the quadrupling of warehouse and office facilities became necessary. Mr. Samuel is well known in New York, as well as in Mexico and Central and South American countries, with many of whose governments he has had large business relations. He is the Secretary, Manager and a Director in the new company. The President is Leonard Munn, of Sheffield, England, the Treasurer is Alexander Muir, who was the Canadian manager of the English company.

The new corporation occupied its new building Feb. 1. It represents not only Cammell Laird & Co., Ltd., of Sheffield, but all its allied interests, viz.: The Cyclops Steel & Iron Works, of Sheffield; the Yorkshire Steel & Iron Works, the Grimesthorpe Ordnance Steel Tyre & Spring Works, and the Shipbuilding Works at Birkenhead.

LITIGATION OVER PATENTS ON BITULITHIC PAVING.—The United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of Indiana has just rendered a decision on an application in the case of the Warren Brothers Co. against the Marion County Construction Co., in the city of Indianapolis. The plaintiffs applied for a temporary injunction, alleging infringement of their patent on bitulithic paving. The defendants showed exhibits of paving laid in Washington, D. C., and at the intersection of Clark and Monroe Sts., Chicago, and elsewhere, as proof that the patents were invalid for want of novelty. The plaintiffs showed other exhibits as evidence that the alleged anticipations were different from the pavement covered by the Warren patent. The court declined to grant the temporary injunction, and the following are excerpts from its decision:

I think it is too plain for argument or discussion or to permit the question of invention to come into it, that if you want to get a solid pavement you do not want too much of the fluxing material; you want to get as much of the solid material as you can, and enough of the fluxing material for binding purposes to hold it together. Now, that being the case, it seems as plain to me as hitting a nail on the head that you can get the best mixture by mixing the different sizes, the largest first, then the smaller, and so on down to dust, and that a man should have thought of that seems so plain to me that I do not understand how anyone ever concluded that there was invention in it. * * * When a suit is brought of this kind, where the patent has been in litigation in various parts of the country, and where there is still much question about it; where, if an injunction is granted now, it may be by the court itself set aside on final hearing; where there is no reason shown why in the ordinary processes of the court there cannot be a speedy determination of this on its merits, and when determined, against defendant or defendants who are amply able to respond, it seems to me there is very little ground to ask the court upon a partial hearing to issue an execution in advance of judgment.

There are too many preliminary injunctions granted. * * * Notwithstanding the history of this litigation, I have grave doubts myself as to whether there is any invention in this patent. Passing beyond that, I think it is open to debate, at least, as to whether or not this patent has not been anticipated in two or three instances from thirty to fifty years ago.

CONSUL LESTER MAYNARD, Vladivostok, transmits the information that the Russian government contemplates the improvement of the existing Siberian Railway and the construction of duplicate approaches both in European Russia and the Far East. When these works are completed, in 1915, the imperial treasury will have expended on the Siberian Railway over $1,000,000,000, which includes both cost of construction and loss on exploitation. In exchange for this, Russia will have a complete double-track system from the Urals to the Pacific, with double approaches, of a total length of 6,844 miles.

During 1910 the Ministry of Communications introduced into the Duma three bills providing for parts of this vast work. The first is to double the Baikal-Kultchuk section of the Circumbaikal Railway, the second is connected with the eastern part of the new Amur Railway, and the third is for double-tracking the existing Transbaikal Railway. The most important work, strategically, is the Amur Railway, which will supply Russia with communication with the Far East, running through Russian territory alone, as against the existing Chinese Eastern line. The new Amur line will be 1,344 miles long, and, as officially estimated, will cost $121,050,000; but, including rolling stock, guarding during construction, and the usual percentage of estimated expenditure, the cost is put at $149,244,000. With the completion of this work, which has been two years in hand, Russia will for the first time have railway communication with the Far East lying entirely in native territory.

The second great work under way is connecting St. Petersburg and the European Northern Railway system with the main Siberian line, the chief approach to which has hitherto been through Moscow and central Russia. The total cost of this new approach and incidental improvements will be $43,243,000.

Doubling and improving the existing track of the Siberian Railway is the next work. Calculated on the basis of past outlays, the Russian engineer, Mikhailovsky, puts the cost of reconstructing the existing Siberian line at $97,966,000. This makes a total cost of new works undertaken during the past three years of $290,453,000.

Engineering defects in the line will remain in steep gradients in the Transbaikal Railway which require pusher service, a large number of short curves, and wooden bridges over the narrow rivers, which are constantly destroyed by fire. The correction of these defects will bring the total to $302,210,000.

The statistical department of the Ministry of Communications puts the construction outlay up to 1907 on the Siberian and Manchurian railways at $422,412,000. The losses on exploitation during the 14 years which have elapsed since 1896, when the western section of the Siberian line was opened, are given at $211,693,000. The exploitation losses for the six years, which will elapse before the present schemes are finished will amount to about $60,831,000. This makes the total cost of the completed Siberian Railway $997,146,000, or about $146,827 per mile.

TRADE PUBLICATIONS.

DRAG BUCKET EXCAVATORS.—Monighan Machine Co., 2016-2030 Carroll Ave., Chicago, Ill. Stiff paper; 8½ × 12½ ins.; pp. 32; illustrated.

While the drag bucket excavator has been in use in heavy excavation work at least since the starting of the Chicago Drainage Canal, some 15 years ago, it is only quite recently that its use has become so widespread and the developments in the type so marked. The particular machine described in this catalog is operated from a long boom extending out from a set of tracks on which rest the engine and controlling devices.

CONCRETE MIXER.—Milwaukee Concrete Mixer & Machinery Co., Milwaukee, Wis. Paper; 6 × 9 ins.; pp. 23; illustrated.

The Milwaukee mixer is a batch mixer, approximately spheroidal in shape, with interior blades or buckets which pass through the material, stirring and grinding the aggregates, and pick up the concrete from the bottom of the drum, thus giving a uniform mixture. The claim is made that there is nothing marvellous about the Milwaukee, other than increased simplicity of construction, greater durability and the latest improved labor-saving devices for handling the material."
